FUN AT THE FAIR

Good crowds so far
at this year's event

A partly sunny day with mild temperatures in the 70s greeted visitors to the Casey County Fair at the Central Kentucky AG/EXPO Center on Saturday.

Casey County Fair Board Treasurer Judy Meeks set Saturday's attendance at 1,215 and Monday's attendance at 330, down a bit possibly due to rain which moved into the area about 5 p.m.

Saturday's events included baby and youth pageants, as well as the preteen, teen, and Miss Casey County Fair events.

Several dairy and cow shows were held as well as two dog shows and the ever popular mule pull.

The evening's events were capped off with the Clementsville Truck Pull.

In addition to the opening of the carnival, laser tag and the clown circus on Monday evening, there were also two demolition derbys featuring small cars and new for this year, an event with lawnmowers.

Woman found injured on roadside

By Larry Rowell
Staff Writer

A Lancaster woman was hospitalized Saturday after she was found alone and injured on Upper Brush Creek Road about two miles from Ky. 906.

Casey County Deputy Sheriff Freeman Luttrell said that 42-year-old Sheila Gregory had injuries to her face and leg.

"When I got to the scene about 5:15 p.m., EMS had her intubated and I wasn't able to speak with her," Luttrell said, adding that she was later airlifted to University of Kentucky Medical Center.

However, Luttrell did speak with Gregory as she was being discharged from the hospital on Monday.

"She told me that all she remembers is she was going swimming but she doesn't remember how she got injured," Luttrell said.

Luttrell said that Gregory gave him the names of several people with her at the time she was injured. Luttrell declined to give the names of the individuals citing the ongoing investigation.

Liberty man indicted in Lincoln County Faces additional charges in Casey County

By Larry Rowell

A Liberty man with a 15-year-long record of burglaries, thefts and assaults has been indicted in Lincoln County for allegedly forcing a woman to the ground, taking her money and leaving her by the side of the road.

William Bullock, 33, of 288 Taylor St., faces one count of second-degree robbery for "threatening or causing physical injury upon Rebecca Coffman while in the course of committing a theft," according to the indictment.

Lincoln County Regional Jail records show Bullock, who is also known by the alias "Bubbles," was lodged on April 1 and was being held as of Thursday afternoon on one count of second-degree burglary, one count of second-degree assault, two counts of illegal

Couple takes a trip 'back to the future' in remodeled home

By Larry Rowell
Staff Writer

A visit to Harold and Cathy Williams' home on Hamm Road off Ky. 1547 is like taking a modern step back in time.

The Williams took the old, abandoned, Hamm homeplace and literally built a modern, yet country, home over it. And they did the majority of the work themselves.

"We've been told that the house dates back to 1904 and we found newspapers from the 1930s in the house when we were renovating it," Cathy said.

Cathy, a native of Georgia, and Harold, from North Carolina, got married in 1998 after dating for three years in Blackshear, Ga., where they both lived.

Harold worked for Georgia Pacific for 28 years while Cathy served as the marketing director at Satilla Park Psychiatric Hospital in Waycross, Ga.

The couple decided that Casey County would be a good place to live and bought the 116 acre farm in 2003 and remodeled the old house enough to live in it when they visited.

"We had good vibes when we saw the place, there weren't any 'haints' in it," she said, laughing.

Harold was working for the Kentucky Division of Forestry in eastern Kentucky and they were living between Barbourville and Pineville.

■ See COUPLE/3

Harold and Cathy Williams spent more than seven years envisioning how they could transform an early 1900s farm house on Hamm Road, pictured below, into the house they live in today, at top. The home, using pine and cypress woods from Georgia for the floors and walls, was literally built over the older one, doubling its size.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

More information wanted for election

I would like an answer as to why there was no summary of the Democratic candidates in the Casey News the week before election. Since there were two Democrats running, we obviously had two available choices. I learned that one choice was definitely better. Since these candidates were not likely known, it would be a toss up for making an intelligent decision. I can see no reason why a reporter could not call or fax the candidates, and I don't mean just try once for a contact. It seems to me that in the case of an election all honest information should be covered. Voting is the most important duty of every citizen and shouldn't be exercised in a sloppy manner at the hands of a most important part of our freedom — the newspaper.

I just wanted to show you I have the chops to be on TV with my own advice show. Of course, I'll have some guest stars. The first one will be Tom Selleck. That would be a BIG hoot!

This and that in the county

The Bedford Inn

Since I began working at the news office almost four years ago, one major and continuing complaint I've heard is: "There's no motel in Liberty."

Well, we do have a first class motel but only because Doug and Nicki Johnson have worked so hard to try and raise the old Royal Inn Express on Wallace Wilkinson Boulevard to a new level of service with a complete renovation.

I have followed with great interest the Johnson's redo and renaming of the motel as The Bedford Inn.

And, as I understand it, the work is progressing nicely and they even cleaned up some of the old rooms so people could stay there.

Following the work on The Bedford Inn's facebook page, the pictures of the rooms that have been renovated are gorgeous and rival and surpass many of the major motel chains.

Larry
ROWELL
Staff Writer

To keep that new look and smell, a no smoking policy is in effect.

But sadly, it was reported on Sunday that some overnight guests in one of the new rooms had partied hardy, smoked up the room and put their cigarettes out all over the room, spilled beer, and walked on candy, crushing it into the new floor.

I am so sorry that this happened and this is just another indication of a serious lack of respect and courtesy in this country for rules.

It may be that the only way to stop bad behavior is to hit them where it hurts, in the wallet.

What if The Bedford Inn clearly alerted guests to the fact that if the room is smoked in, a cleaning fee of $300 will be applied to the offending guests' credit card.

Let's encourage the Johnsons in this new venture because many Casey Countians have family members that come back to town for family reunions, funerals, and the like. And these guests will no longer have to drive to surrounding towns to find a room for the night.

County Fair

I thought there was a good crowd at the Central Kentucky AG/EXPO Center Saturday for the start of the Casey County Fair.

I covered the baby and youth pageants and as always, the events were well organized and everyone seemed to have a good time.

It was fun watching the parents making faces in an effort to get their kids to smile while on stage.

Later that day I covered the three teen pageants — preteen, teen, and Miss Casey County Fair.

The young ladies were gorgeous, poised and well coached in their repertoire before the judges.

I don't know what criteria the judges used to choose a winner because all the contestants, in my humble opinion, were worthy of a first place finish.

I wandered down to the mule pull and there was a good crowd on hand for the mules that pulled a sled loaded with cement blocks.

The dairy and cow shows, while not well attended, had a good number of participants who went to great effort to polish those bovines up and have them presentable before the judges.

But my hat is off to the Casey County Fair Board members as they, just like the Apple Festival Committee, organize this event with a handful of volunteers who seem to make it look effortless it runs so smoothly.

What I heard in the garden

David B.
WHITLOCK
Guest

By now you've heard the news: We're growing, at least physically. The average American male is 17 pounds heavier and the average female 19 pounds heavier than in the late 1970s. And the percentage of overweight children and adolescents in the U.S. has nearly tripled in that same period of time.

One of the most overlooked and effective ways to fight our growing weight problem is to grow a vegetable garden.

I'm not alone in that conviction. First Lady Michelle Obama has made gardening the centerpiece of her platform for promoting a healthier diet, especially among children. Released last week, her book, American Grown: The Story of the White House Kitchen Garden and Gardens Across America, chronicles her journey as a gardener and describes her plans to encourage gardening.

It's true: You eat what you grow in a garden, and it's healthier, fresher, and more nutritional than what you get from that drive-through window. You'll get some exercise as you grow a garden, too.

Besides that, if you leave your cell phone in the house, you could receive an added benefit: You might hear those plants talking.

Of course, the garden doesn't audibly speak, like the corn field that whispered to Kevin Costner. But I've listened, novice gardener that I am, to what those plants have had to say.

I've heard them telling me to slow down and get in touch with the rhythm of life. It takes time to grow food; there is no fast-food garden. When we don't recognize that, we unknowingly fall into the trap the dark side of agribusiness offers, with its endless attempts to accelerate nature into higher and higher gears for the faster and quicker production of food, a process which finally abuses farmland and farming people, severing us from the rhythm of life, outsourcing all we do.

Those plants also tell me that their ground is a sacred ground. I try to respect that. I even made up a song for them, which I sing before my neighbors are awake, to the tune, "Rise up O Men of God." I greet my garden with "Rise up, O Plants of God, ye creations of the Lord, bring forth your royal fruit to Him, and praise his name above." (I'm still working on stanza two.) My plants don't laugh when I sing, and they reward my efforts with a plentiful harvest.

I love it when my plants remind me that it's not absolutely necessary for me to have them perfectly lined up and every weed pulled for them to be fruitful. My gardening coach, Glen Sandusky, looked at a crooked garden row in my first garden, before my other gardening coach, Phil Moss, taught me to drop a line and make neat, straight rows.

"Well, you can get more in a crooked row than a straight one," Glen mused.

He's been listening to the garden for years.

My plants have told me we are connected. And in some strange and mysterious way, I believe they are right. After all, I was there when I put the seed in the ground, brushed the dirt as the seedling first poked its head to daylight, watched it grow into a mature plant, and then enjoyed its offering of delicious delights. And I am there when it turns brown, withers and fades into the same earth in which I will one day join it, resting with it in peace.

The garden also tells me that if it's not enjoyable, then I should do something else. Gardening is work, but if done right, it shouldn't be drudgery. As Wendell Berry wrote in his book, The Art of the Commonplace, "The 'drudgery' of growing one's own food...is not drudgery at all. (If we make the growing of food a drudgery, which is what 'agribusiness' does make of it, then we also make a drudgery of eating and living.) It is - in addition to being the appropriate fulfillment of a practical need - a sacrament, as eating is also, by which we enact and understand our oneness with the Creation, the conviviality of one body with all bodies."

Maybe Mrs. Obama is broaching a broader subject than simply how to maintain a healthier diet.

Perhaps the garden can tell us something about experiencing the sacredness of life in all its fullness, even as we grow the garden instead of a super sized self.

Brown recluse spiders are all bite (and no bark)

By Stephen Lega
The Lebanon Enterprise

A good night's sleep turned 2011 into a pretty bad year for Millie Bradshaw.

Last April, the day after her husband Joe had left on a golfing trip, she woke up and noticed a brown lump in her bed. She wasn't wearing her glasses at the time, so she didn't realize what she was grabbing as she moved the lump off her bed. She thought it was a clump of grass, but she did wonder how it got there.

Later that day, she noticed her right elbow was bothering her. After a little while, she decided to take another look at that brown lump she'd moved off her bed.

That's when she realized it was a dead brown recluse, and she'd probably been bitten in her sleep.

"I taped the spider to a card with a sign that said, 'This is what bit me,'" Bradshaw said.

In case she died, she said she wanted people to know why.

Her life may not have actually been at risk, but for eight months, she practically lost use of her right arm. Her doctors even told her she was at risk of losing her arm due to complications that occurred after her bite.

The brown recluse is one of two spiders with toxic venom that live in Kentucky (the black widow is the other), according to Lee Townsend, a professor of entomology at the University of Kentucky.

"They like places that are undisturbed. That's where they get the recluse name," Townsend said.

Brown recluses can grow to about the size of a quarter with their legs extended. They also have a dark brown fiddle shape on the top of their heads that can help identify them, according to information written by Mike Potter, entomologist for the UK Cooperative Extension Service.

Brown recluses live under rocks, logs, woodpiles and debris in the outdoors. They prefer places where they are less likely to be bothered, such as attics, closets and woodsheds. Townsend added that brown recluses are not typically aggressive and will run away if they can.

"Usually when people are bitten, they'll pick up something without seeing it and accidentally squeeze the spider," he said. "That's when the bites come."

The other common way that people are bitten is when they are asleep. Brown recluses are nocturnal, so they will hunt for food at night. As a result, people sometimes roll over on a spider or unconsciously brush it away, causing the spider to bite as a defensive measure, Townsend said.

Bradshaw said she is pretty sure she had been in the attic before she was bitten, and she thinks the spider may have gotten on her clothing without her realizing it.

After Bradshaw knew that she had been bitten, she visited a clinic in a Kroger when she went to Louisville to visit her daughter. She originally treated the bite with antibiotics.

Townsend said brown recluses are considered poisonous because their bite can cause tissue death. In Bradshaw's case, the infection from the bite went deeper into her arm.

"It felt like I had a golf ball underneath my skin," she said.

In June, she had surgery to remove the affected area. Unfortunately, she got an MRSA infection following that surgery.

"They told me it was limb-threatening," Bradshaw said.

A home health nurse visited her house twice a day for three months to make sure her bandages were fresh since her wound from her surgery wasn't closing up, she said. In October, she had a second surgery to finally close the wound, and in December, the doctors confirmed that her arm would be OK.

Looking back at what she went through, Bradshaw is grateful that she realized fairly quickly that a brown recluse had bitten her.

"I found mine right off and knew what it was and had it diagnosed," she said.

According to the extension office, brown recluses have small fangs that cannot bite through clothing. When bites do occur, they are generally painless. Victims may not realize they have been bitten until hours later, when a bite may become red, swollen and tender. Most bites will heal within three weeks without serious complications, according to the extension office.

In the event of a bite, Potter recommends applying ice, elevating the affected areas and seeking immediate medical help.

In a few cases, the venom from an untreated bite may continue to destroy tissue, causing lesions, which may be dry and bluish with a pale center and red edges. This could lead to necrotic ulcer, which may persist for months and leave a deep scar.

To avoid bites, Townsend suggested being alert.

"I would be particularly careful about what I pick up and how I pick it up," he said.

This includes looking at an object completely before picking it up, and maybe even wearing gloves when handling items that have been in storage.

Reducing clutter gives spiders fewer places to hide. Townsend also suggested putting items inside plastic bags or a plastic box that can be sealed before putting them in storage.

People who suspects that they do have brown recluses in their houses could put down glue boards (which are often used to catch cockroaches and mice) in the suspect areas, Townsend said. People who do discover that brown recluses have infested their home should call a professional exterminator to take care of the situation.

"It's not a spider you want to have around you," he said.

The kitchen in the Williams' restored home features a massive, antique solid wood counter that houses a cooktop. Beaded board walls and a pantry with an old screen door complete the country look. MIDDLE, the Williams have a great room that opens up off the kitchen, offering guests in both rooms a chance to visit together. BELOW, the back porch, complete with a sink and an antique working gas stove, serves as a canning center in the summer and a sitting place where the couple frequently enjoys a relaxing moment with a cup of coffee.

Couple

Deciding to retire in 2007, Harold and Cathy began work in earnest on the house in April 2008 and finished it in January 2010.

Harold said that the original house, with about 1,100 square feet, was L-shaped.

"We squared it up then added a western wing with a garage and an eastern wing with a front porch and built a new roof over the old one," he said.

Harold and Cathy smile as they talk about their labor of love that evolved over the course of seven years.

The 2,000 square-foot house, which Cathy calls "redecorated countrified," features "pecky" wood walls that Harold harvested from cypress trees in a swamp in Georgia.

"It took 15 trees weighing about 28,000 pounds to get enough board feet of lumber," he said.

Harold said the boards, with what looks like termite tunnels on the surface, are similar to lumber taken from "wormy" Chestnut trees in Kentucky.

The lumber in the wood floors are from Georgia pine trees.

In keeping with the country theme, beaded wall boards adorn the ceilings, giving the home a true early 20th century feel.

The home features antique furniture in every room, some Harold acquired in 1977 when he began collecting antiques.

Knickknacks and other furnishings have been collected as the couple goes to antique auctions in surrounding states.

Several of the doors in the home were salvaged from an old train depot that Harold demolished himself. Even though Harold is now retired, he and Cathy aren't resting on their laurels.

They bought a one-room log cabin in Montgomery, Ind., transported it here and have rebuilt it on their farm to be used as a guesthouse. The log cabin dates to 1821, Harold said.

A one-seater outhouse, with the original seat from the Hamm house outhouse, sits just outside the cabin.

Even though the couple stays active with their mules and various farm chores, they always look forward to their six children and 12 grandchildren visiting the farm.

June marks 100th anniversary of Kentucky's first highway commissioner

For most of Kentucky's history, there were only two ways to get from one place to another: By horse or by boat. Even when railroads began reaching across the state in the 1830s, these methods of travel remained the back-bone of our early transporta-tion system.

While rivers were essen-tially open to anyone, the same could not be said of our first roads, almost all of which were privately owned even well past the Civil War. Those wanting to use them could expect to pay a hefty price, too, since toll gates were built about five miles apart on average.

In 1851, when the state standardized how much tolls

Terry
MILLS
State
Representative

could cost, those on horse-back would be charged a nickel, but wagons being pulled by six animals would cost 75 cents, or more than $19 when adjusted for infla-tion.

Kentucky was initially a pioneer in transportation, because we were the first state to establish a highway department. It was relatively short-lived, however, lasting only from 1835 to the 1850s. In fact, the current constitution, which was enacted in 1891, pointedly barred the state from raising highway funds, leaving this responsi-bility to local governments. That didn't change until 1909.

Three years later, the foundation of our current Transportation Cabinet was formed. This month, in fact, marks the 100th anniversary of the state's first highway commissioner.

Understandably, the de-partment started off small at first, with a staff of 14 and an annual budget of $25,000. In 1920, the state inherited 4,000 miles of roads that had been built by counties, though most were impassable for at least part of the year.

The state's first four-lane highway, from Lexington to Versailles, came in 1938, and in 1954, the state's first modern toll-road – from Louisville to Elizabethtown – was opened. Costing $33.2 million to build, it's now part of I-65.

Two years later, Congress authorized the interstate high-way system, which eventu-ally led to the six main routes we have today and a seventh – I-69 in Western Kentucky – coming on board. Combined, they measure more than 700 miles, or about one percent of the 70,000-plus miles we now have in our local and state highway system.

Kentucky has often got-ten high marks for the way it maintains its roads. A 2010 report by researchers based at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte ranked us 14th among the states overall. In the sub-rankings, Kentucky was found to have the best rural interstates and the lowest average adminis-trative cost. Unfortunately, we were near the other end of the spectrum when it came to highway fatalities and traffic congestion along interstates in urban areas.

Earlier this year, the Gen-eral Assembly authorized the latest two-year plan for our roads and bridges. It's no small venture, with more than $4 billion worth of projects being approved. Our Road Fund, meanwhile, has been a bright spot in recent months, with healthy growth enabling us to move these projects along more quickly than initially thought.

As always, if you have any questions about this issue or anything else affecting the state, I would like to know. My address is Room 329B, Capitol Annex, 702 Capi-tol Avenue, Frankfort, KY 40601.

And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and their shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away.

Is your family's health history a secret?

By Joanne Gallivan, M.S., R.D.

Director, National Diabetes Education Program, National Institutes of Health

Do you know your fam-ily's health history? Or is it like a secret no one wants to talk about? Many health con-ditions, including type 2 di-abetes, run in families. Many people who get type 2 di-abetes have one or more family members with the disease.

Knowing the health history of your siblings, parents, and blood relatives is important because it gives you and your health care team information about your risk for developing health problems, such as type 2 diabetes. You can't change your family history, but know-ing about it can help you work with your health care team to take action on things you can change. Studies have shown that you can prevent or delay type 2 diabetes by losing 5 to 7 percent of your weight, or 10 to 14 pounds if you weigh 200 pounds. You can lose weight by walking 30 minutes a day for five days a week and choosing healthy foods lower in fat and calories.

The National Diabetes Edu-cation Program (NDEP) urges everyone to explore their fam-ily health history and make a family plan to prevent or delay the onset of type 2 diabetes.

1. Ask around. Talk to your relatives to find out if anyone has diabetes. If you have been diagnosed with diabetes, tell your family.

2. Update your health care team on your family history. Talk to your health care team about whether you should be screened for diabetes. It is important to find out early if you have diabetes so you can take steps to manage the dis-ease. People who keep their blood glucose (sugar) as close to normal as possible in the early years after they are di-agnosed with diabetes have fewer problems with their eyes, nerves, and kidneys, and fewer heart attacks later in life.

3. Make a healthy eating plan for the whole family. The plan should include:

- Eating a variety of colorful fruits and vegetables, whole grains, and fat-free or low-fat milk and milk products,
- Choosing lean meats, poultry without the skin, fish, beans, eggs, and nuts, and
- Foods low in saturated fats, trans fats, cholesterol, salt (sodium), and added sugars.

4. Get Moving. Make phys-ical activity a family affair. Go for a walk, or play soccer, basketball, or tag with your children. Try swimming, bik-ing, hiking, jogging, or any activity that you enjoy. Vary your activities so you don't get bored.

Don't let diabetes be your family secret. Make a family plan to work together to pre-vent or delay type 2 diabetes. If someone in your family has diabetes, ask how family members can support them.

For more information about diabetes, contact your local health department and ask to speak to the diabetes educator or call 1-800-928-4416.

Maintain safety around the house

Though you probably consider your home a safe getaway from the world around you, you should beware of dangers that could turn your peaceful Saturday into a medical emergency. According to the American College of Emergency Physicians, more accidents occur in the home than in the workplace. In addition, an estimated 400,000 individuals are treated each year in hospital emergency departments as a result of injuries related to the use of lawn and garden tools.

As you spend your weekends making home improvements and keeping up your lawn, take the following precautions to maintain your safety:

■ Avoid careless injury by using the right tools for the job, and make sure you have proper training for equipment you are using. Never do electric work unless you are qualified.

■ Wear earmuffs or earplugs to protect your hearing.

■ When working outside, be sure to wear protective clothing, including close-fitting clothes, gloves, long pants, long-sleeved shirts and slip-resistant shoes. If you are working with heavy parts or machinery, wear hard-toe or safety steel-toe shoes.

■ If you will be outside in the yard for an extended period of time, wear sunscreen and stay hydrated.

■ When using chemicals on your lawn, follow the manufacturer's directions. After using chemicals, keep children away from the lawn.

■ When using a cutting tool, always aim the edge away from your body.

■ When using a ladder, place it firmly on even ground and face it when climbing up or down, holding the side rails with both hands. Keep aluminum ladders away from power lines, and never use them to do electric work because they conduct electricity.

■ Regularly inspect tools, cords and accessories, and repair or replace them if they are broken.

■ Never work with lawn and garden equipment in damp or wet conditions.

■ Before mowing, remove rocks, metal, glass, sticks, branches and other debris from the lawn.

■ Always keep a first-aid kit in your home and a list of emergency medical numbers near your phone.

Hospital sale date pushed back

ADAIR COUNTY — The closing date for the sale of Westlake Regional Hospital has been pushed back by at least a month, according to Rodger Klein, Interim CFO for Westlake, who gave a report at the May 29 hospital board meeting. Klein said it could be the end of July or even the end of August before the deal is completed for the sale of the hospital to LifePoint Hospitals.

"I don't think we're shooting for a June 30 closing date any more," Klein said. "July 31 would be a more realistic date, and it could take until August 31."

Klein said they are still in constant negotiations with LifePoint and things are progressing.

"An asset purchase agreement is being worked on together by the hospital's attorneys and LifePoint's attorneys, and its very close to being completed," he said, but noted there is still a lot of work to be done.

According to Klein, the hospital continues to lose money due to low patient census. He urged the board to consider across-the-board cuts and to find a way to reduce some costs.

Water treatment plant expansion delayed

BOYLE COUNTY — Danville will not be able to begin construction on the $27.5 million water treatment plant expansion due to a shortage of federal funds.

Brent Tippey of HDR, Inc., the company managing the project, said that officials had hoped to begin construction no later than September but they did not receive a $12.8 million rural development grant from the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The project has likely been delayed until November.

Because the $12.8 million grant is not available, there will be a delay in the anticipated $1 million Community Development Block Grant.

Danville must complete the project in order to meet U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) regulations for water treatment that will take effect in 2014. Tippey said they must also complete the project to assure that the water needs of the city are met for at least 40 years and to make sure the equipment is reliable and easily maintained.

Barn and 300 rolls of hay destroyed by fire

LINCOLN COUNTY — A barn filled with 300 rolls of hay burned on Pork Hill Farm on Ky. 78 outside Stanford last week.

When firefighters arrived at the scene they found the barn fully engulfed in flames. Fire Chief Danny Glass said the barn was almost gone when they arrived. He said they could have put out the barn fire but they could not put out the hay fire.

Glass explained that hay rolls are so tight that water doesn't penetrate the surface, making it next to impossible to extinguish a fire inside unless you can unroll it. He said it is possible the rolls could smolder for up to a week.

Pork Hill Farm owner David Campbell estimated that he had lost around $6,000 worth of hay in the fire along with the barn and a tractor stored in the barn.

Lebanon man indicted for rape

MARION COUNTY — Michael Johnson Jr. of Lebanon was indicted for 20 counts of first-degree rape and four counts of first-degree sodomy in Marion Circuit Court recently.

According to the indictment, between May 19, 2010 and October 9, 2011 Johnson engaged in sexual intercourse with a person who was incapable of consent because she was younger than 12. The indictment also reads that Johnson engaged in deviate sexual intercourse with someone by forcible compulsion or who was incapable of consent because she was younger than 12.

His bond was set at $50,000 with the condition that he has no contact with the complaining witness or her family.

Extendicare pull-out affects Sunrise Manor

PULASKI COUNTY — Sunrise Manor Nursing and Rehabilitation, a Somerset nursing home, is included in a group of Kentucky facilities owned by Extendicare Health Services, Inc. which is facing a change in ownership because Extendicare has decided to cease all operations in Kentucky.

Extendicare cited increased litigation against its facilities and the failure of state lawmakers to make it more difficult to sue nursing homes as its reason for leaving the Commonwealth.

Extendicare said it will lease its 21 facilities to a long-term care operation in Texas, but declined to identify the company. The change will probably be effective July 1.

Bernie Vonderheide, who founded Kentuckians for Nursing Home Reform, said he didn't think the state would suffer from Extendicare's departure. He said the state needs nursing homes that abide by the regulations and provide good care; then they don't have to worry about being sued.

Hospital gets USDA loan for expansion

RUSSELL COUNTY — Russell County Hospital received word from the office of U.S. Rep. Ed Whitfield that it has been awarded a $21 million loan from the Rural Development office of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Plans are to expand the current hospital facility, which opened in 1981, and will include a new emergency room, radiology, laboratory and surgical areas.

Chris McQueary, the chairman of the hospital's board of directors, said efforts to get the loan from the USDA have been two years in the making.

Russell County Hospital CEO David Rasmussen said the next round would be to complete the bid documents and concept drawings in the coming weeks.

Wise murder trial delayed

TAYLOR COUNTY — Kathleen Wise of Campbellsville was indicted last July by a Taylor County grand jury and charged with the first-degree murder of her husband, Joseph. If convicted, she faces as much as life in prison.

Wise was scheduled to appear in Taylor Circuit Court on May 28 but Tim Cocanougher, the prosecutor in the case, said one of the witnesses Wise's attorney, William Butler, intends to call to testify couldn't appear in court at that time due to medical issues. Wise's trial has been reset to July 30.

Wise formally pleaded not guilty to the crime and prosecution has said it will not seek the death penalty. According to court records, Wise allegedly admitted that she added liquid morphine to her husband's drinking water last June 7 but Butler said that Wise denies killing her husband.

Wise is a former registered nurse. The allegations against her stem from a toxicology investigation into her husband's death.

Joseph Wise died last June 8 from a supposed heart attack. Routine toxicology tests, however, revealed that he had consumed a fatal dose of morphine.

17 die on Kentucky roadways May 29-June 3

Preliminary statistics* indicate that seventeen people died in sixteen separate crashes on Kentucky roadways from Tuesday, May 29, through Sunday, June 3, 2012.

Ten of the fatalities involved motor vehicles and five victims were not wearing seat belts. Single-fatality crashes occurred in Boone, Clay, Fayette, Green, Greenup, Logan, McCracken and Pendleton counties. One double-fatality crash occurred in Warren County.

There were three motorcycle involved fatalities and two of the victims were not wearing helmets. Crashes occurred in Bath, Jefferson and Powell counties.

There were four pedestrian involved fatalities and they occurred in Boone, Madison, Martin and Trimble counties. The crash in Boone County involved the suspected use of alcohol.

Through June 3, 2012, preliminary statistics* indicate that 305 people have lost their lives on Kentucky roadways during 2012. This is 41 more fatalities than reported for the same time period in 2011.

There have been 253 motor vehicle fatalities and 148 of those victims were not wearing seat belts. Thirty-two of those crashes involved a commercial motor vehicle.

Twenty-five crashes involved a motorcycle and fifteen victims were not wearing helmets.

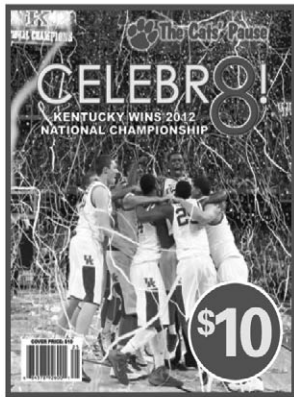

Three crashes involved an ATV and two victims were not wearing helmets.

Twenty-three crashes involved a pedestrian and one involved a bicycle.

Fifty-three deaths have resulted from crashes involving the suspected use of alcohol.

Dear Savvy Senior,

Can you write a column educating patients on how to prepare for doctors appointments? I manage a number of small health clinics, and have found that patients — especially seniors — that come prepared when they visit our doctors are much more satisfied with the care they receive. Thanks for your help.

Patient Educator

Dear Educator,

You're right. Studies have shown that patients who help their doctors by providing important health information and preparing themselves for appointments tend to get better care than patients who don't. Here are some simple things we can all do to help maximize our next visit to the doctor.

Before Your Appointment
Gathering your health information and getting organized before your appointment are the key steps to ensuring a productive meeting with your doctor. This is especially important if you're seeing multiple doctors or are meeting with a new physician for the first time. Specifically, you need to:

Get your test results: Make sure the doctor you're seeing has copies of your latest X-ray, MRI or any other test or lab results, including reports from other doctors that you've seen. In most cases, you'll need to do the leg work yourself which may only require a phone call to your previous doctor asking them to send it, or you may need to go pick it up and take it yourself.

List your medications: Make a list of all the medications you're taking (prescription drugs, over-the-counter medications, vitamins, minerals and herbal supplements) along with the dosages and take it with you to your appointment. Or, just gather up all your pill bottles and put them in a bag and bring them with you.

Gather your health history: Your doctor also needs to know about any previous hospitalizations, as well as any current or past medical problems, even if they are not the reason you are going to the doctor this time. Genetics matter too, so having your family's health history can be helpful. The U.S. Surgeon General offers a free web-based tool called "My Family Health Portrait" (see familyhistory.hhs.gov) that can help you put one together.

Prepare a list of questions: Make a written list of the top three or four issues you want to discuss with your doctor. Since most appointments last between 10 and 15 minutes, this can help you stay on track and ensure you address your most pressing concerns first. If you're in for a diagnostic visit, you should prepare a detailed description of your symptoms.

During Your Appointment

The best advice when you meet with your doctor is to speak up. Don't wait to be asked. Be direct, honest and as specific as possible when recounting your symptoms or expressing your concerns. Many patients are reluctant or embarrassed to talk about their symptoms, which makes the doctor's job a lot harder to do. It's also a good idea to bringing along a family member or friend to your appointment. They can help you ask questions, listen to what the doctor is telling you and give you support.

Also consider taking some notes or ask the doctor if you can record the session for later review. If you don't understand what the doctor is telling you, ask him or her to explain it in simple terms so you can understand. And if you run out of time and don't get your questions answered, ask if you can follow up by phone or email, make another appointment, or seek help from the doctor's nurse.

Savvy tip: The National Institute on Aging offers a booklet called "Talking With Your Doctor: A Guide for Older People" that provides great information including a variety of questions to ask that can help you be a more informed patient. To get a free copy mailed to you, call 800-222-2225 or visit www.nia.nih.gov.

I'm Alive...

because someone like YOU joined the Kentucky Organ Donor Registry

At 3 months old, Katie's parents noticed the whites of her eyes were turning yellow. Katie would not survive without a liver transplant. She's alive because someone said "yes" to organ donation. Now, Katie is a 10-year-old honor student who plays basketball and goes camping.

Please give $1.00 to promote organ donation when you renew your driver's license.

Fred's Finest Danville truck wrecks on Walnut Hill

Originally published in the Jan. 31, 1952 issue of The Casey County News

Three men from the Danville area wrecked a 1 1/2 ton GMC truck on the steep curve on Walnut Hill about 4:30 Sunday morning. According to the best reports they did not know whether they were going up or down the hill when they wrecked. It probably didn't make much difference anyway, the spectators said, because they were practically numb under the influence of liquor.

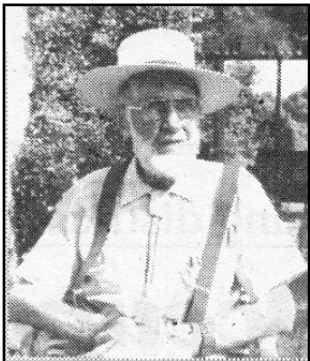

The men said they had turned over about two or three times, but those who saw the wreck said it was more likely seven or eight times. The truck stopped rolling about 100 feet from the highway and was sitting on its side folded up.

One passenger suffered a broken leg between the knee and the hip. Neither the driver nor the other rider were hurt other than from scratches they acquired when they probably fell out of the truck into the briar patch.

The Gosser-Smith ambulance was called to take the men to the Casey Hospital, but in their intoxicated way they kept calling for Dr. Jackson (Danville physician). Since the Casey Hospital staff had already taken care of one series of such cases and none of the men were dangerously injured they sent the men on to Danville and their friend, Dr. Jackson.

Three inducted into Casey Alumni Association Hall of Fame

Middleburg School Preservation Society donates $60K to scholarships

The Casey County Alumni Association held its annual luncheon May 19 for members to recognize the accomplishments of those who were inducted into the CCAA Hall of Fame and to celebrate the students who were selected to receive the group's scholarships for the 2012-2013 scholastic year.

Five seniors — Madison Marcum, Hannah Allen, Kayla Hines, Ashley McQueary, and Jason Luttrell — were recognized for receiving the CCAA $500 scholarship that is renewable for four years. Two renewal scholarships were also given to Sarah Durham and Jacklyn Wahl.

Another special presentation was made during the meeting. The Middleburg School Preservation Society, which had elected to disband its efforts, announced that it had voted to give $60,827.83 — the money remaining in its account — to the CCAA to use for student scholarships.

Two scholarships in the amount of $1,500 per semester will be awarded annually from the Middleburg School Scholarship fund. Students who have some connection to the Middleburg School or the Middleburg community are encouraged to apply.

Three individuals — Bill Grider, Maxine Price and the late Dr. Pat Shugars, were inducted into the Hall of Fame.

Bill Grider

Bill Grider, the son of Loyd and Arlie Grider, graduated from Casey County High School in 1965 and soon made his way to Chicago where he met his future wife, Sharyn, a Wisconsin native.

Two years later, having completed his schooling in Chicago, he moved to Sheboygan, Wisc., where he and Sharyn were married. They have two daughters, Debra and Heather, two sons-in-law, Chris and Michael, and four grandchildren, Parker, Taylor, Elyse and Eden.

In 1967, Grider began work as a caster at Watry Industries, a company that provides castings, machining, powder coating and the assembly of aluminum components for industry.

Later that year, he left Watry to begin a four-year apprenticeship as a tool and die maker.

Upon completion of the apprenticeship he returned to Watry Industries with a journeyman tool and die maker card.

In 1975, Grider completed his studies in Tool and Die Design at Lakeshore Technical College and was assigned to the engineering department.

After 12 years in the engineering department, he accepted a position as sales engineer. His excellent performance as a sales engineer led to his promotion in 1989 to National Sales Manager of his company, a position he held for the next seven years.

In 1994, Grider completed his studies in financial accounting at the University of Wisconsin, placing third in his class.

For the next 14 years he had record breaking sales that earned him a promotion to Vice President of Sales and Operations.

In 2007 Watry Industries was sold to Ligon Industries and Grider was retained by Ligon as General Manager of the Watry Division.

Maxine Price

Maxine Rodgers Price graduated from Liberty High School in 1942, went to the University of Kentucky at age 16 and three years later earned a B.S. in Business and went to work as the secretary to UK's vice president.

Soon after she married and moved away, held jobs at the Casey County Bank, General Electric, the draft board, and was an accountant at Stanford Wood Products before returning to Liberty to teach after the board asked her to finish the school year.

Attending UK during the summer months, Price earned a master's degree in education in 1957.

In a career that spanned 47 years — 26 of those in room 102 at Casey County High School — Price taught typing, accounting, shorthand, office practice, citizenship, and contemporary problems.

As a sponsor for senior class trips, she traveled to Washington, D.C., New York City, and Florida.

Maxine was awarded an Excellence in Teaching Award at Campbellsville College and was given the education award at the 2011 Liberty/Casey Co. Chamber of Commerce Annual Banquet. She has one son, Dr. John R. Price, and daughter-in-law Terry Price, three grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Dr. Pat Shugars

Dr. Jonas Patterson "Pat" Shugars grew up on a farm near Liberty, the son of W. K. and Vera Huntsman Shugars. He had three brothers, Bill Jr., Owen and John. Pat held the Star rank as a Boy Scout, was a member of Future Farmers of America and played varsity basketball for Casey County High School. He graduated in 1951 and later served in the U. S. Army. Pat studied agriculture at the University of Kentucky, graduating with a B.S. in 1955, and continuing his studies in horticulture until he earned a Masters Degree in 1957. While at UK, he married Jessie Sue Allen. They have two daughters, Peggy and Nancy. Nancy and her husband Mark have two sons, Nolan and Wes.

He was a faculty member of Berea College from 1961 until his retirement in 1999. During his tenure at Berea he continued his studies at the University of Tennessee, earning a PhD in Horticulture in 1970. In addition to his professorial duties of teaching and advising students at Berea, Pat was head of campus gardeners, spearheaded the college's first recycling program and operated the college's first trash compacting truck. He was at one time responsible for community trash collection.

He also developed the community rental gardens program, supervised the college greenhouse and developed an heirloom seed collection. Early in his tenure he rose to the rank of full professor and later served a term as Chairman of the Agriculture Department of Berea College. While at Berea he was awarded the Labor Day Award in 1979 and the Seabury Award for Excellence in Teaching in 1981. In his last official class at Berea he took 30 students on an educational trip to eastern Europe.

Dr. Shugars passed away in November of 2011.

Sue Gilpin, left, secretary of Middleburg School Preservation; Melissa Thompson, president of the Casey County Alumni Association; Joberta Wells, president of MSP; and Joy Tarter, treasurer of MSP, pose with a check donated to the CCAA for scholarships.

Back row, Brandon Hafley, Matthew Allen, Dalton Evans, Hannah Hess, Olivia Pitman, Brianna Gosser, Cara Stafford, Kaitlyn Wright. Absent was Hannah Dean.

Wethington selected for Rogers Explorers

Casey County Middle School student Lauren Wethington has been invited to build her math, science, and technology skills this summer as a participant in The Center for Rural Development's 2012 Rogers Explorers youth leadership program.

She was selected from 187 applicants from across Southern and Eastern Kentucky to strengthen her academic skills and begin working toward a future career in some of the country's most demanding career fields.

"Rogers Explorers was formed in 2006 as a means to reach more young people within The Center's 42-county primary service area, and to focus on leading students into in-demand careers in our region," said Lonnie Lawson, president and CEO of The Center. "The Center has partnered with four Kentucky colleges and universities to host our Explorer camps on their campuses to give these students hands-on experience in a college environment. By doing so, we help them see the value of higher education and prepare them for success."

This year's sessions of Rogers Explorers will be held on the campuses of Lindsey Wilson College in Columbia, June 3-5; University of the Cumberland in Williamsburg, June 6-8; Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond, July 18-20; and the newest host site at Morehead State University in Morehead, July 22-24.

Thirty rising ninth-grade students will attend each of the four summer sessions of Rogers Explorers making this the largest class of participants in the history of the program.

"Rogers Explorers gives students a one-of-a-kind learning experience, as we open their eyes to the vast potential in the plentiful careers in math and science," said Delaney Stephens, youth programs coordinator and community liaison for The Center. "They will also develop a lifelong network of friends, and will build essential skills that will help them become the region's next generation of leaders."

As Rogers Explorers, participants spend three days and two nights on a college campus, where experts guide them through hands-on assignments, all of which encourage creative thinking and teamwork and build leadership skills.

The program is presented tuition-free to participants and hosted in partnership with the University of the Cumberland, Lindsey Wilson College, Eastern Kentucky University, and Morehead State University.

Lauren is the daughter of William and Nikki Wethington of Liberty.

No need to pay for college financial aid information

Parents of college-bound students often hear sales pitches from companies that promise to help them find financial aid to pay for college. There's no need to pay for this kind of information, according to the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA).

Financial aid information can be obtained free by working with your school counselor, checking out sources in the library, doing free online scholarship searches or contacting the financial aid office of the college you plan to attend.

If you decide to use a company to help you find financial aid, make sure you're dealing with a reputable one. The Federal Trade Commission cautions students to be especially skeptical about scholarship search companies and websites that make these claims.

■ "You've been selected by a national foundation to receive a scholarship." Check with a guidance counselor to find out if the foundation is legitimate. Be especially wary if you're notified that you're a finalist in a scholarship contest you didn't enter.

■ "We'll do all the work." It's highly unlikely that the company will fill out all the applications for all the financial aid sources it sends you.

■ "I just need your credit card or bank account number to hold this scholarship." Never give these numbers to a person or company you're not sure about. You could find your credit card maxed out and your bank account cleaned out.

■ "You're guaranteed to get money for college or your money back." Read the fine print. If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is.

KHEAA is the state agency that administers Kentucky's student aid programs, including the Kentucky Educational Excellence Scholarship (KEES).

Casey Track and Field team honored at annual banquet

High school, middle school students recognized

By Rita "Peat" Harris
Sports Correspondent

The Casey County Track and Field team held a cook-out style banquet Sunday afternoon to officially conclude their 2012 season. The team honored both high school and middle school athletes for their season accomplishments.

"We put some things together (this season) as a team and did well," Head Coach Matt Willoughby said.

The team graduated three seniors — Trenton Buis, Bethany Scott and Kenny Stratton.

"The good and the bad thing this year was we only had three seniors so most people will be back next year but we are going to miss (the seniors)," said Willoughby.

State qualifying honors were presented to Tiara Cochran, Abby Meece, Lakken Miller, Nicole Nagy, Laura Parris, Micah Smith and Shelby Stringer.

Blake Durham was given the Hardest Worker Award and Kenny Stratton was awarded Most Dedicated.

"The girls were able to bring home some trophies this year," Willoughby said, mentioning the three meets at which the Lady Rebels placed first or second.

The three trophies earned at those meets were presented to individuals who played key rolls in each high achievement.

Nagy received the first place E.G. Plummer trophy.

"She really did well that night and did some things she doesn't normally do," Willoughby said.

Receiving the runner-up Lake Cumberland Classic trophy was Tyra Senghamyong.

"It's this girls' first year and she did some things really well and really improved," Willoughby said.

Meece was presented the Boyle County Invitational runner-up trophy. Meece won the discus at the meet setting a then-personal best doing so.

Miller and Allison Dallman were recognized for having tied the junior varsity high jump record at 4'10."

Assistant coach Amanda

Hatter honored 15 middle school athletes for qualifying for the state track meet.

Cannon looking forward to senior season at Asbury

By Rita "Peat" Harris
Sports Correspondent

Elliot Cannon, a 2009 graduate of Casey County High School, was a standout Rebel basketball star during his time at CCHS. Cannon dressed varsity for three years and played the center position. He is currently playing ball at Asbury University in Wilmore, Ky. as a center and power forward and will begin his senior season this fall.

RH: What have you liked most about your collegiate athlete experience?

EC: Being part of the team. Getting to know my teammates like brothers is the best part of my athletic experience.

RH: Have you accomplished any major goals or milestones while at Asbury?

EC: I have finished up my third year. I have been able to run five miles in 40 minutes three years in a row.

RH: How many seasons do you have left and what goals do you have for the future?

EC: I have one more year left and I would like to help the team have another winning season.

RH: Will basketball still be a part of your active life post-college? Play for other leagues? Coach?

EC: Coaching for sure. I am looking forward to coaching and being a teacher after college.

RH: What are you studying currently and do you have any post-graduation plans?

EC: Teaching Physical Education K-12. Hoping to get a teaching job and start coaching.

Editor's Note: Throughout the summer, Sports Correspondent Rita Harris will catch up with various Casey County Rebel and Lady Rebel alumni who have gone on to pursue athletics after high school in this new seasonal weekly feature, Alumni Spotlight.

SPORTS TALK

Gearing up for the NBA finals

I was recently posed the question, "Heat or Celtics?" My unfortunate response was, "Eeh... umm... well, I really do not care actually." That was after I had to think about to what the question was referring. Then I got ridiculed for calling myself a sports writer. Oops.

And maybe it is true. What kind of sports writer doesn't even keep up with the NBA playoffs? I have to admit, I've always been more of a college sports fan than pro.

I'm trying to get into Fantasy Football to increase my interest in the NFL. Ever since I stopped collecting NBA trading cards back in middle school, I just haven't found my hook into pro basketball. I always feel a century or two behind as far as the knowledge I have.

So I've done the most basic of basic research on the four remaining teams and here is what I have decided I like about each team and why I would possibly root them into the finals:

Oklahoma City Thunder:

They are a "newish" team and have yet to capture the title. (Referred to as a 'reincarnate' of the Seattle Sonics.)

Oklahoma isn't exactly known for its basketball and even with the history of the Sonics the team is kind of the underdog of the group.

They've gone from the eighth seed, to the fourth seed to the second seed in the playoffs over the last four years...It could be their time to steal the show.

One UK player (Nazr Mohammed) and one Ohio State player (Daequan Cook) sit on their roster.

I always like Shawn Kemp and he once played for Seattle, which makes it sort of like he once played for Oklahoma City.

Miami Heat:

I played for the Middleburg Heat in Junior Pro. (We were awesome, by the way...)

One name: Pat Riley

For someone who doesn't follow the NBA, they have probably had more players come through their roster that I am familiar with than any other team. Riley knows how to reel them in.

Rita "Peat" HARRIS
Sports Correspondent

They came oh-so-close to that title last year. They've got to be hungry for it.

Boston Celtics:

I like their colors and their use of the shamrock.

Shaquille O'Neal made his rounds being traded numerous times during his 19 year career but he retired in Boston so I'll let them take claim of him for this debate and who doesn't love Shaq?

I have yet to visit Boston, but everything I know about it makes me a fan of the city.

Rick Pitino's connection....Although this might actually be a reason not to cheer for Boston.

Rajon Rondo!

San Antonio Spurs:

Their only four championship titles ever have come in the past 14 years. They've got some good momentum.

I honestly cannot come up with any other reasons I feel compelled to cheer for the San Antonio. Apologies to all of you Spurs fans.

Although this is not the Celtics first time around and the franchise is "old news" when it comes to championship titles (their most recent one being in 2008), something has always drawn me to the team so I'm hoping to see them in the finals this year.

As for San Antonio and Oklahoma City, most definitely the Thunder. There's a good chance I'll even root for them in the finals (if they make it) since the other three remaining teams have claimed titles in the past decade. As a matter of fact, the Spurs have claimed three. Oklahoma City is in search of their first title or even their first trip to compete for the championship.

I know that, for the most part, it is a pretty lame evaluation of the play offs compared to those who actually keep up, but the beauty of sports is you can jump in at any moment and pick a side and get excited about it.

Casey youth basketball camp begins June 12

Casey County Youth Basketball Camp 2012 gets under way Tuesday, June 12 for boys and girls who will be in grades 1-7 this fall. The three-day camp (June 12-14), held at the Casey County High School gym, will run from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. will include breakfast and lunch each day.

Registration will be on the first day of camp at 8 a.m.

Lady Rebel Head Coach Randy Salyers will be the camp director and encourages anyone who has a child interested in basketball to attend.

The focus of the camp is to teach fundamentals of basketball that will prepare the athlete for upcoming league play.

The cost to attend is $55 per child or $45 if two members from the same family attend.

For more information contact Salyers at 606-706-8915.

Blessed is the man who perseveres under trial, because when he has stood the test, he will receive the crown of life that God has promised to those who love him.

Nine people injured in four accidents

By Larry Rowell
Staff Writer

Area law enforcement and emergency personnel were busy during the past week dealing with automobile accidents.

Four teenagers were injured on Thursday afternoon when the vehicle in which they were riding collided with a tractor-trailer in front of McDonald's on Wallace Wilkinson Boulevard.

According to an accident report from Sgt. Randy Dial, Ryan Martin, 17, of 582 Bowman Trail, Liberty, was driving a 2003 Mitsubishi Eclipse when he attempted to make a right turn (south) onto Wallace Wilkinson Boulevard from the red light at McDonald's parking lot at 3:30 p.m.

The front of Martin's vehicle was struck by the right side front tire of a trailer being pulled by a 2000 Mack CX Series driven by David M. Farr, 55, of 5481 Gimlet Road, Lawrenceburg, Tenn., the report states.

Farr, along with two witnesses at the scene, told Dial that Farr's tractor/trailer had the green light.

The report states that Martin was unable to recall the events surrounding the collision.

Vicki Martin, Ryan's mother, said on Monday that he was released from the hospital and recovering at home.

Three passengers in Martin's vehicle — 15-year-old Allison Sellers of 2035 Indian Creek Road, Middleburg, 16-year-old Josh Durham and his brother, Justin, 18, both of 431 Button Knob Road, Liberty, were also injured.

Casey County EMS and Four Casey County teenagers were injured on Thursday afternoon in a collision with a tractor/trailer at the red light in front of the McDonald's on Wallace Wilkinson Boulevard. Here, emergency personnel administer first aid to the accident victims.

Liberty/Casey County Rescue along with Liberty Fire Department responded to the accident scene.

Three other accidents were reported in the county last week.

A one vehicle accident that occurred on May 28 on Ky. 49 injured two women.

According to a report from the Casey County Sheriff's Office, Mabel G. Smith, 62, of 7561 Ky. 49, Liberty, was driving a 1998 Ford Ranger pickup northbound on Ky. 49 at Carr Sasser Road when it dropped off the right side of the roadway and struck a culvert, continued across Carr Sasser Road and came to rest in a ditch.

A passenger in the vehicle, 82-year-old Sharlene Berg, was flown to the University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington. Smith was taken to Casey County Hospital by Casey EMS.

Deputy Chad Weddle investigated the accident and was assisted by Liberty/Casey County Rescue Squad.

A second wreck on May 28 involving two vehicles in the South Fork area injured a Lexington man.

According to Deputy Chad Weddle, Cynthia Tucker, 19, of 2763 South Fork Ridge Road, Dunnville, was headed west on South Fork Ridge Road in a 2000 Ford Expedition when she attempted to turn left onto South Fork Church Road, striking an oncoming 2004 Chevrolet Colorado driven by David D. Cooper, 59, of 1117 Autumn Ridge Road, Lexington.

Weddle said that Cooper was taken taken to Casey County Hospital by a private vehicle. A passenger in the vehicle, Patty Emerson, of 5790 Thomas Ridge Road, Dunnville, was not injured.

Three passengers in the Tucker vehicle — 16-year-old Amber Tucker, 14-year-old Brook Pittman, and Jeremy Tucker, age unknown, were not injured.

A fourth wreck on Friday on Ky. 906 sent two people to the hospital.

Cody M. Rogers, 17, of 1255 Ky. 1562, Hustonville, was headed east on Ky. 906 in a 1992 Chevrolet pickup when he lost control in a curve, went off the right side of the road and struck a tree, said Deputy Chad Weddle.

Rogers and a passenger, 17-year-old Austin Wilkins, address unknown, were taken to Ephraim McDowell Regional Medical Center in Danville by Casey County EMS. A second passenger in the vehicle, V. Hafley, age and address unknown, was not reported as injured.

Indicted

The indictment released Wednesday is for one robbery charge. Bullock's other charges stem from other cases.

According to the arrest citation leading to the indictment, Bullock allegedly took $1,400 from Coffman before "leaving her on the side of the road and driving away."

Amanda Lane, of 295 Earnhart St. in Hustonville, was allegedly in the vehicle that drove away from the scene and has been indicted on a related charge of being complicit in the robbery.

Bullock also faces two counts in Casey County on which he has yet to be arraigned.

Casey County Deputy Chad Weddle arrested Bullock on April 7 on a warrant in the Lincoln County Jail.

Bullock is accused of first-degree burglary and second-degree assault in an incident where he allegedly broke into the home of Ricky Sanders on April 1, 2012, court records indicate.

The warrant states that Bullock entered Sanders' home, attempted to take money and then hit Sanders in the head with a lug wrench.

Bullock was previously convicted of second-degree robbery in 2009, third-degree burglary in 2005 and second-degree burglary in 1997, according to court records. He was sentenced to seven years in prison for the 1997 burglary and five years in prison for the 2005 burglary.

Bullock also has dozens of other convictions for crimes, including theft by deception, fourth-degree assault, criminal mischief, possession of a controlled substance, possession of a handgun by a convicted felon, driving under the influence and public intoxication in Lincoln and other counties, according to court records.

Note: Ben Kleppinger with the Advocate Messenger also contributed to this story.

News Briefs

Call before you burn

Rodger Martin, member of the Liberty Fire Department, is asking county residents to call Casey County Dispatch at 787-9411 before doing any controlled burning.

"Passersby see smoke and they call in a fire. Dispatch will then page out one or more fire departments to respond, creating a risk to responding firefighters along with the expense of responding the equipment on a useless fire call," Martin said.

Police News

Man arrested for theft

Randall W. Lawless, 39, of Paw Paw Creek Road, Liberty, was arrested on Tuesday by Deputy Chad Weddle and charged with theft by unlawful taking over $500, the citation states. Weddle said that Lawless is accused of taking a radiator from a 1951 Chevrolet truck on Doe Creek between January and April of this year.

Man charged with threatening

Magistrates adopt 2012-13 budget

By Larry Rowell
Staff Writer

Meeting in regular session on Monday, Casey County Fiscal Court magistrates have set next year's budget for the county.

Magistrates held second and final reading on the $8.8 million budget with the lion's share going to the General, Road, and Jail funds at $3 million, $1.6 million, and $3.7 million respectively.

In other business, the court:

■ Received the 2012-13 budget of the Liberty/Casey County Economic Development Authority. The EDA expects revenues of $70,100 with $600 in interest, a prior-year carryover of $39,500, and a transfer of $30,000. Appropriations total $46,300 which includes $15,000 for personnel, $10,800 for operations, and $20,500 for administration and revenues.

■ Also received the 2012-13 $5.8 million budget of the Lake Cumberland Area Development District. Inter-governmental revenues are forecast at $5.5 million with other revenues and interest earned at $335,634, Appropriations total $5.8 million with $4.3 million going for personnel expenses, $1.3 million for operations, and $213,000 going toward administration and reserves.

■ Approved County Judge/Executive Ronald Wright's recommendation that John McQueary be hired on a part-time basis at $9.50 per hour to work at the county's recycling center. Recycling Director Robert Holcomb will be out from two to eight weeks recovering from back surgery.

■ Went into executive session for 25 minutes to discuss personnel matters but took no action.

KSP investigates 25 traffic accidents in May

During the month of May, 2012, there were 25 traffic accidents investigated by the State Police working in the Post 15 area in the 11 counties of Adair, Casey, Clinton, Cumberland, Green, Marion, Metcalfe, Monroe, Russell, Taylor and Washington.

There were eight fatalities during the month of May in the Post 15 area: Tanner Mann of Jamestown was killed in Russell County on May 2; Justin Atwood of Campbellsville was killed in Taylor County on May 5; Jade Sullivan of Campbellsville was killed in Taylor County on May 5; Wilma Morgan of Columbia was killed in Taylor County on May 9; Earl Coffman of Liberty was killed in Casey County on May 14; Kinley Brown of Glasgow was killed in Russell County on May 27; Joshua Goad of Holiday, Fla. was killed in Clinton County on May 29; Betty Simpson of Greensburg was killed in Green County on May 30.

This brings the yearly fatality count to 18 compared with 13 through this same period in 2011. State wide fatality count stands at 299 compared with 255 through this same period in 2011.

During the month of May, 2012, there were 1894 citations written, 426 courtesy notices written, 2777 vehicles inspected, 835 complaints answered, 104 motorists assisted, 63 criminal cases opened and 138 criminal arrests made.

Legislation signed to expand seat belt law

Gov. Steve Beshear, joined by state officials and highway safety advocates, signed a bill that will expand Kentucky's seat belt law to include vehicles designed to carry 15 or fewer passengers on May 30. State law previously required seat belt use in vehicles designed to carry 10 or fewer passengers.

"I'm pleased that we are closing a loophole in the previous law that neglected to protect drivers and passengers in 15-passenger vans," Beshear said in a statement released by this office. "In my administration, safety is, and will continue to be, a top priority."

Sen. Ernie Harris, of Crestwood, and Sen. Julie Denton, of Louisville, filed Senate Bill 89 in response to a 15-passenger van crash in 2010 on I-65 near Munfordville that killed 11 people, most of whom were not wearing seat belts.

"With the accident two years ago, it became evident that Kentucky's seatbelt laws did not adequately protect some traveling on our roadways," Harris said. "It is my hope that with this new law, this horrible tragedy will never be repeated."

Beshear was joined by Harris, Sen. Dennis Parrett, of Elizabethtown, and Kentuckians for Better Transportation Director Stan Lampe for the signing held at the KSP Police Post in Elizabethtown.

"The passage of SB 89 is distinctly encouraging because it sends a message that our elected officials are serious when it comes to transportation safety," Lampe said.

"Gov. Beshear, Sen. Harris and all of the members of the 2012 Kentucky General Assembly deserve some considerable praise for their leadership on this important piece of legislation. With this measure, our officials have taken another step to improve roadway safety. We, in turn, should all 'buckle up' and tell our family and friends to do the same."

Wilson, Allen, Loy win Casey Fair pageant titles

Winners to compete at Kentucky County Fairs pageants in Louisville

By Larry Rowell
Staff Writer

Three young ladies were crowned in pageants over the weekend as the 2012 Casey County Fair officially got under way.

Kacie Ann Wilson, 18, of Cave City was crowned the new Miss Casey County Fair. She will represent the local fair at the Miss Kentucky County Fairs Pageant, which will be held in Louisville in January.

Wilson, the daughter of Greg and Sherry Wilson, will also accompany the Little Miss and Mister Casey County Fair winners to Louisville as they compete at the Kentucky State Fair in August.

The Miss Casey County Fair pageant, held Saturday night at the Central Kentucky AG/EXPO Center, featured 24 young ladies ages 16-21 competing for the title. That number is more than the double the 10 contestants who competed last year.

Runners-up included Monica Robertson, 20, first runner-up and daughter of Jeff and Sharyn Robertson of Harrodsburg; Shelby Elaine Stringer, 16, second runner-up and daughter of Barry and Susan Stringer of Liberty; Andrea Nicole Wallace, 17, third runner-up and daughter of Mark and Dinah Wallace of Fountain Run; and Destiny Hope Guffey, 17, fourth runner-up and daughter of the late Shirley Guffey of Albany.

Miss Teen

Amber Kennedy Allen, 15, was chosen from among 21 contestants as Miss Teen Casey County Fair held Saturday evening. She will represent the Casey County Fair at the Kentucky County Fair Teen Pageant to be held in Louisville later this fall. Allen is the daughter of Cheryl Bookout and Ken Allen of Albany.

Runners-up in the pageant, which was for girls ages 13-15, included Kaitlyn Johnson, 13, first runner-up and daughter of Andy and Debra Johnson of Somerset; Kennedy Alexis Sabharwal, 13, second runner-up and daughter of Shawn and Tammy Sabharwal of Lexington; Hayden Nichole Grissam, 15, third runner-up and daughter of Emmett and Jennifer Grissam of Winchester; and Rachel Kate Squires, 14, fourth runner-up and daughter of Mitchell and Jennifer Squires of Greensburg.

Miss Preteen

The Miss Preteen Casey County Fair, held earlier in the day on Saturday, featured 28 girls ages 8-12.

Crowned the winner was Kaylyn Loy, 11, daughter of Jeff and Vicki Loy of Russell Springs. Like Miss Teen, she will go on to the Kentucky County Fair Preteen Pageant, also in the fall.

Runners-up were Brooklyn Grace Roller, 9, first runner-up and daughter of Kenny and Misty Roller of Cox's Creek; MaKencie Faith Woods, 10, second runner-up and daughter of Brendan and Amanda Woods of Liberty; Presley Morgan, 12, third runner-up and daughter of Dewayne and Tonya Morgan of London; and Gracie Marie Johnson, 9, fourth runner-up and daughter of Leo and Kim Johnson of Windsor.

HOROSCOPES

June 6-12
CAPRICORN
December 22-January 19
There's no use procrastinating on something that needs to get done this week, Capricorn. It will only prolong the amount of time you have to worry about it.

AQUARIUS
January 20-February 18
Aquarius, patience and motivation is all you need to start tackling that to-do list. Finding a partner to help will make the work go twice as fast.

PISCES
February 19-March 20
Pisces, others often look to you for inspiration. You will not disappoint this week when you offer some unique ideas.

ARIES
March 21-April 19
An agreement will be nullified before you even get started, Aries. It is time to come up with a different plan of action if you want better results.

June 6-12
TAURUS
April 20-May 20
Relationship woes have slowed you down, Taurus. It could take a few days before you return to full speed. Delegate some of your responsibilities, if necessary.

GEMINI
May 21-June 21
Gemini, you're giving off so much creative energy that people may flock to your side for the next several days. This newfound celebrity could be an asset.

CANCER
June 22-July 22
Cancer, there is no easy way around something you need to get done at work. Being scatterbrained this week may add to the pressure of getting things done.

LEO
July 23-August 22
Leo, you have to ask a lot of questions to get to the root of a problem that's been bothering you. You have the personality to get to the answers easily.

VIRGO
August 23-September 22
Virgo, an unexpected partnership could arise this week. While it may be bumpy at the start, after a few days, the two of you will have worked out all of the kinks.

LIBRA
September 23-October 22
Libra, after some busy months, you are ready for a vacation. This well-deserved respite could be an elaborate trip to some place exotic, if you should so choose.

SCORPIO
October 23-November 21
Scorpio, with so many creative ideas constantly whirling in your head, it can sometimes be difficult zeroing in on one. Luckily this week you will get things in order.

SAGITTARIUS
November 22-December 21
Sagittarius, avoid passing judgement on someone else close to you. Listen to their problems and work with them to find a good solution.

Water - Essential for Life

City of Liberty
Water Quality Report for year 2011
P.O. Box 127, Liberty, KY 42539
Meeting location: Liberty City Hall
Meeting Dates and Time: 2nd Wednesday of each month 5:00pm

Manager: Steve Sweeney
Phone: 606-787-9973
CCR Contact: Bridgett Blake
Phone: 606-787-9973

This report is designed to inform the public about the quality of water and services provided on a daily basis. Our commitment is to provide our customers with a safe, clean, and reliable supply of drinking water. We want to assure that we will continue to monitor, improve, and protect the water system and deliver a high quality product. Water is the most indispensable product in every home and we ask everyone to be conservative and help us in our efforts to protect the water source and the water system.

Liberty Water Work's source is surface water from Lake Liberty, which is an 80 acre lake that is approximately 45 feet deep. The water is treated at the Liberty Water Plant. Our source water assessment plan has been completed and is available for inspection at the Lake Cumberland Area Development District. An analysis of the susceptibility of the Liberty Water Works water supply to contamination indicates that this susceptibility is low. Within the critical protection area there are two potential sources of contamination that are ranked high, five ranked medium and none ranked as low. The highest concern is a closed Superfund site known as Hidden Valley; the potential contamination sources are areas with exposed bare rock or soil. The remaining five listed sources are all ranked as posing a medium level threat to the drinking water source. These potential contaminant sources consist of forestland, hay fields, and pastureland, KY Route 1649, and power line rights-of-way. The location of the Lake Liberty water intake and remote area of the watershed make the routine non-point contaminant sources of low concern. The only serious potential source for this water system is the closed Hidden Valley Superfund site.

Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects may be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material, and may pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity. Contaminants that may be present in source water include: Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, (sewage plants, septic systems, livestock operations, or wildlife). Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, (naturally occurring or from stormwater runoff, wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining, or farming). Pesticides and herbicides, (stormwater runoff, agriculture or residential uses). Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, (by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, or from gas stations, stormwater runoff, or septic systems). Radioactive contaminants, (naturally occurring or from oil and gas production or mining activities). In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, EPA prescribes regulations that limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. FDA regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water to provide the same protection for public health.

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

Some or all of these definitions may be found in this report:

Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL) - the highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.

Maximum Contaminant Level Goal (MCLG) - the level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level (MRDL) - the highest level of a disinfectant allowed in drinking water. There is convincing evidence that addition of a disinfectant is necessary for control of microbial contaminants.

Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level Goal (MRDLG) - the level of a drinking water disinfectant below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MRDLGs do not reflect the benefits of the use of disinfectants to control microbial contaminants.

Below Detection Levels (BDL) - laboratory analysis indicates that the contaminant is not present.

Not Applicable (N/A) - does not apply.

Parts per million (ppm) - or milligrams per liter, (mg/l). One part per million corresponds to one minute in two years or a single penny in $10,000.

Parts per billion (ppb) - or micrograms per liter, (µg/L). One part per billion corresponds to one minute in 2,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000.

Parts per trillion (ppt) - one part per trillion corresponds to one minute in 2,000,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000,000.

Parts per quadrillion (ppq) - one part per quadrillion corresponds to one minute in 2,000,000,000 years or one penny in $10,000,000,000,000.

Picocuries per liter (pCi/L) - a measure of the radioactivity in water.

Millirems per year (mrem/yr) - measure of radiation absorbed by the body.

Million Fibers per Liter (MFL) - a measure of the presence of asbestos fibers that are longer than 10 micrometers.

Nephelometric Turbidity Unit (NTU) - a measure of the clarity of water. Turbidity has no health effects. However, turbidity can provide a medium for microbial growth. Turbidity is monitored because it is a good indicator of the effectiveness of the filtration system.

Variances & Exemptions (V&E) - State or EPA permission not to meet an MCL or a treatment technique under certain conditions.

Action Level (AL) - the concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements that a water system shall follow.

Treatment Technique (TT) - a required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water.

Spanish (Español) Este informe contiene información muy importante sobre la calidad de su agua beber. Tradúzelo o hable con alguien que lo entienda bien.

The data presented in this report are from the most recent testing done in accordance with administrative regulations in 401 KAR Chapter 8. As authorized and approved by EPA, the State has reduced monitoring requirements for certain contaminants to less often than once per year because the concentrations of these contaminants are not expected to vary significantly from year to year. Some of the data in this table, though representative, may be more than one year old. Unless otherwise noted, the report level is the highest level detected.

	Allowable Levels	Highest Single Measurement	Lowest Monthly %	Violation	Likely Source
Turbidity (NTU) TT * Representative samples of filtered water	No more than 1 NTU* Less than 0.3 NTU in 95% of monthly samples	0.09	100	No	Soil runoff

Regulated Contaminant Test Results

Contaminant [code] (units)	MCL	MCLG	Report Level	Range of Detection	Date of Sample	Violation	Likely Source of Contamination
Radioactive Contaminants
Beta photon emitters (mrem/yr)	4	0	3.70	3.7 to 3.7	Dec-08	No	Decay of natural and man-made deposits
Alpha emitters [4000] (pCi/L)	15	0	1.80	1.8 to 1.8	Dec-08	No	Erosion of natural deposits
Combined radium (pCi/L)	5	0	0.50	0.5 to 0.5	Dec-08	No	Erosion of natural deposits
Inorganic Contaminants
Fluoride [1025] (ppm)	4	4	0.97	0.76 to 1.2	Aug 2011	No	Water additive which promotes strong teeth
Nitrate [1040] (ppm)	10	10	0.13	0.13 to 0.13	Jan-11	No	Runoff from fertilizer use; leaching from septic tanks, sewage; erosion of natural deposits
Disinfectants/Disinfection Byproducts and Precursors
Total Organic Carbon (ppm) (measured as ppm, but reported as a ratio)	TT*	N/A	1.34 (lowest average)	0.97 to 1.95 (monthly ratios)	N/A	No	Naturally present in environment.
*Monthly ratio is the % TOC removal achieved to the % TOC removal required. Annual average of the monthly ratios must be 1.00 or greater for compliance.
Chlorine (ppm)	MRDL = 4	MRDLG = 4	1.07 (highest average)	0.39 to 1.79	N/A	No	Water additive used to control microbes.
HAA (ppb) (all sites) [Haloacetic acids]	60	N/A	56 (system average)	30 to 90 (range of system sites)	N/A	No	Byproduct of drinking water disinfection
TTHM (ppb) (all sites) [total trihalomethanes]	80	N/A	76 (system average)	34 to 100 (range of system sites)	N/A	No	Byproduct of drinking water disinfection.

The Casey County Bank

Invites everyone to attend a

Community Day

in the South Fork area of Casey County

Saturday, June 9

from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Come out and see us at Sunny Valley Country Store, located on South Fork Creek Road

Free Hotdogs!

See a demonstration of our newest state-of-the-art ATM!

Casey County Bank employees will be on hand to help you apply for a debit card and answer any questions you may have!

Looking out for tomorrow by helping our community today!
